The kidneys are two bean-shaped organs found in vertebrates. They are located on the left and right in the retroperitoneal space, and in adult humans are about 11 centimetres (4.3 in) in length. Notes: Usually Chelonia, Testudines, or Testudinata. However Dubois & Bour 2010 argue that none of these names are viable. For example, although "Testudines" has been credited to Linnaeus, the term as originally used was a plural referring to the members of the genus Testudo, not a family-series or class-series nomen. Both Chelonii and Chelonia are latinisations of Cheloniens Brongniart, 1800.
